1. Overview

An exchange lets you swap a purchased item for a different size, width, or colorway of the same model, without waiting for a refund to clear before reordering. Exchanges must be requested within the same window as a standard return for that brand (60 days for Nike, 30 days for adidas — see the Return Policy for full detail), and the replacement item must be in stock at the time of request.

2. Nike Products — Return-and-Reorder Model

Nike does not process direct one-to-one exchanges. Instead, you start a standard return for the original item and place a new order for the correct size or color. This avoids delays tied to inbound inspection and guarantees you get the replacement while it's still in stock, rather than waiting for the original item to be received first.

- Start your return through Order History and select "Return" as the reason.
- Immediately place a new order for the size, width, or color you actually want.
- Once your returned item is received and inspected, the refund for the original order is issued to your original payment method as normal.
- Nike Members get free return shipping on the original item, so the net cost of an exchange is the same as a normal purchase.

3. adidas Products — Direct Exchange

adidas supports a direct exchange process: you request the exchange, the system issues a return label, and once the original item is scanned by the carrier, the replacement is shipped out — rather than requiring a brand-new separate order.

Step	adidas Exchange Rule
Request exchange	Select "Exchange" (not "Return") from Order History and choose the new size/color.
Packaging	Item must go back in its original packaging with all tags attached.
Drop-off deadline	Package must be dropped off within 10 days of the exchange being initiated.
Exchange limit	Each item may be exchanged once. A second swap must go through the standard return-and-repurchase process.

Step	adidas Exchange Rule
Shipping cost	Free for adiClub members; standard exchange shipping fee applies to guests.

4. Size and Width Exchanges

Both size and width swaps (e.g. Standard to Wide) are treated as exchanges under this policy. If your desired size is out of stock at the time of your Nike reorder or adidas exchange request, we recommend requesting a refund instead and watching the product page for restock, since we cannot guarantee availability will return before the item sells out again.

5. In-Store Exchanges

Both online and in-store purchases of either brand can typically be exchanged at any physical store location, subject to that store's current stock. Bring your order confirmation or receipt. In-store exchanges are usually the fastest option since sizing and stock can be confirmed on the spot.

6. Exchanges for a Different Product

Exchanges are limited to the same model in a different size, width, or color. If you'd like a genuinely different product (e.g. a different shoe model or a different brand entirely), that requires a standard return of the original item and a new, separate order.

This Exchange Policy reflects each brand's own published exchange mechanics — Nike's return-and-reorder approach and adidas's direct one-time exchange — layered with this store's fulfillment terms. It should be read alongside the Return Policy and Shipping Policy, which govern timing, cost, and eligibility not repeated here.
